Employees may only bid on one position at a time

You must be qualified in your CURRENT POSITION by the time the bid comes down

Any employee bidding on a position must understand the following Union Rules as they are stated in the Collective Bargaining Agreement:

Article 11 Section G-V: As to all bidders Paragraph 1: The employee shall have a training/qualifying period of up to thirty (30) working days. The Employer has the right to extend the qualifying period if it believed the employee is not qualified at the end of thirty (30) working days. Should the employee fail to qualify he shall be returned to his former job. Employees who were unsuccessful in the attempt to qualify shall be prevented for a period of one year after return to his former job from again placing his name on a bid for the same position. The employee shall not be permitted to move to his new shift until his replacement is trained and able to satisfactorily perform the job.
